

Your extra help at home really makes a difference. Thank you in advance. A few skills that can always be worked on are printing (work on correct size and formation), tying shoes (many are still asking for assistance), and learning personal information (full name, address, phone number, etc.).

Homework Hints

When your child brings home papers with mistakes, please be sure to correct them with your child. It is a wonderful learning moment, and good practice for your child.

Make homework a priority in your home. Completing and returning homework helps build a sense of responsibility and prepares the students for the upcoming years.

Designate a quiet and comfortable place for completing homework.

Stock frequently needed supplies: pencils, papers, crayons, scissors, and erasers.

If your child says he doesn't have any homework, then be sure to provide your own homework during the usual homework time. He can read, write, practice math facts, study vocabulary words, or utilize an interactive educational site.

Most importantly, communicate with your child's teachers if you have questions or concerns.

Reading is the base of all the subjects. Scholastic offers great books at reduced prices. It's a great way to build your home library and help our classroom earn free books.
